

COVER HOUSE: CROCODILE CROSSING

The outdoor entertainment area includes an infinity-edge swimming pool which appears to spill directly into the ocean.

entertainment needs. If that is not enough, one can always wander down to the backyard beach or stroll down the dock. An interesting factor in the decision making process of this project revolves around the fact that both the owners are very busy executives. They would fly in, spend a couple hours in the D'Asign Source showroom, and then return to the north. The actual hands-on, face-to-face time with the clients was very minimal. Decisions were made via e-mail, faxes, and sending autoCAD plans. This was possible, in large part, because of D'Asign Source's extensive showroom. With numerous kitchens, bathrooms, and other display settings to view, it is very easy for clients to go through the showroom and indicate what they like and do not like. This eliminates a lot of guesswork and reduces the involvement time required of the clients. Although not a solution for every client, this approach was perfect for these clients and this situation. This home embraces and celebrates the essence of indoor-outdoor living. We suspect that the homeowners will spend less and less time in their other homes in favor of the magnificent residence they have here!

Views can be enjoyed year-round from the whirlpool spa or swimming pool.